The Computing Sciences Department and
The ACM Student Chapter present

Distinguished ACM Speaker: Charlie Fink

Convergence, or How the World Will Be Painted With Data

Time and Location:
Thursday September 17, 2019
DSP Presentation begins at Noon
Zoom ID: 994 2258 4700
Passcode: Royals

Abstract:

Bio:

Charlie Fink is an AR/VR consultant, speaker, and Forbes columnist. He is a former Disney, AOL and AG Interactive executive who famously came up with the idea for "The Lion King". In the 90s, Fink was EVP & COO of VR pioneer Virtual World Entertainment. He is the author of "Charlie Fink's Metaverse, An AR Enhanced Guide to VR & AR" and a professional speaker whose numerous appearances include CES, SXSW, and AWE.

In addition to his column in Forbes, Fink is the contributing editor of Virtual Reality Pop.
In addition to his work as head of story development for Disney Feature Animation during the second golden age of Disney animation (‘85-’92), Fink was SVP & CCO of AOL Studios (‘95-’99). His past experience also features successful exits from several startups, including eAgents, which sold to AG Interactive, where he then served as President for three years, and Charlie Company, an SEO/SEM affiliate marketer and consultancy that most notably created "The Other 98%" for client Moveon.org in 2009, which now has over 6 M followers on Facebook. Charlie Company was sold in a private transaction in 2014.

Charlie Fink is also a producer of live theater in NYC. He is the Producing Artistic Director of the New Musical Foundation, a non-profit that supports the development of new musicals and has won over 15 awards for its productions. From 2007-2017 Fink was Chairman of the Drama Desk Award-winning NY Musical Festival.
--
The best compliment you can give me is introducing me to someone who you think would be a good client or would book me to speak!